

In the Beginning

This timeline uses source 61B, The Reese Chronological Bible and other sources to create a more holistic view.

Creation 4.4 Billion years B.C. (wikipedia.org)*
Creation 3976 B.C. (61B)

If you add to it 2007 years and you have the current Hebrew date of about 5983. I take this as the date of the beginning of recorded history, not the literal date of the creation, as New World theorists do. I do therefore, by default, accept the Gap Theory, which would be the difference between the scientific definition and the beginning of recorded history... or about 4 billion years.

*Interpretation of radiometric age dating of zircons suggests that the Earth is at least 4.404 billion years old. Comparing the mass and luminosity of the Sun to the multitudes of other stars, it appears that the solar system cannot be much older than those rocks.
